

MISS RODEO GLENNVILLE PAGEANT APPLICATION INSTRUCTIONS

Thank you for considering entering the Miss Rodeo Glennville Pageant! The Greenhorn Mountain Veterans Association Glennville Rodeo Round-up is in its 74th year and the Miss Rodeo Glennville royalty have long been the ambassadors for our community and the sport of professional rodeo. We hope you enjoy the competition!

The biggest mistake a contestant can make is to believe that the competition begins when she arrives at the rodeo grounds for the pageant. The competition begins when a contestant submits her application and other information to the pageant directors. These documents, along with your photo, create the all-important first impression. Long before you meet the pageant directors or judges they will see your application and begin to associate it with you. For the judges, the application can be a very important decision-making factor. An application can, at times, mean the difference between winning and losing the competition.

APPLICATION GUIDELINES:

- The application and other documents should be neatly TYPED. Never submit an untyped application. If you would like an MSWord copy of this application emailed to you, please contact the pageant committee. Or, if necessary, borrow a typewriter from your school or church.
- Have someone else proofread your application for any errors or unclear thoughts. You may not always catch mistakes.
- Make sure that you tell the truth on your application.
- Make a copy of your final application and study it. If judges ask you questions about your application, you will want to answer with the same information you submitted. Also, make sure that you fill out the application, not your parent(s) or anyone else. You must be the person you describe in this application and believe what it says.
- Do not use cute or informal language. Think of this as a job application and fill it out as professionally as possible.
- Do not use nicknames! (But feel free to let us know if you go by any other names.)
- State your accomplishments, but do not brag or drag on about everything since pre-school. The most important accomplishments the judges wish to see are related to leadership, public speaking, education, and horse show or rodeo awards. These types of accomplishments help the judges discern if you have the qualities needed to represent our rodeo. Listing too many things will become tedious to the judges, which can cause them to miss something important; stick to the basics.

Remember, a neatly completed application with impressive grammar, goals, and achievements will put you one step further toward your goal of earning the rodeo royalty title you seek.

GOOD LUCK!
